Responsibility takes a big role in life. Responsibility is doing what you're told, even when no one asked you to do it. Say you have a job, your responsibility is to go to that job. If your Mom or Dad tells you to do something, your responsibility is to do what they tell you to do.

If you have homework, your responsibility is to get your homework done. If you have a special job at school you should do it. It's your responsibility to listen to the teacher. It's your responsibility to pick up your mess after lunch.

At home it is your responsibility to straighten your room. You should help your Mom or Dad with meals. You should also help with your little brother or sister. If you have a pet you need to love and take care of it, too.

I think Mothers especially show responsibility every day. They know when to wake up in the morning. They make sure we eat good food. They make sure we have clean clothes and dress nice. They also remind us to give thanks.

This trait is very important because we use responsibility every day. Most people would not have a job if they did not learn responsibility. Teachers and other people at school help us learn responsibility. Parents teach us responsibility for when we grow up.
